DETAILED ACTION

1. Claims 1-14 are pending in the application.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

2. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

3. Claims 1-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

The term "hard plastic" in claim 1 is a relative term which renders the claim indefinite. The term "hard plastic" is not defined by the claim, the specification does not provide a standard for ascertaining the requisite degree, and one of ordinary skill in the art would not be reasonably apprised of the scope of the invention.

The limitation "base formed in a size to contact the whole user's back" in claim 4 is unclear and renders the claim vague and indefinite. It is unclear what the user is and how big does it need to be to satisfy the condition.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

Art Unit: 1772

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

5. Claims 1-6 and 11-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Crane et al. (U.S. Patent No. 3,391,413).

Crane discloses a cushion member comprising a base made from hard plastic (col. 1, line 12) and a plurality of cushioning elements provided on one side of the base, wherein each of the cushioning elements includes a plurality of ribs forming an internal space thereon and a plurality of holes formed by the neighboring ribs and communicating with the internal space (figures 7-9). The cushioning elements can be provided all over the base or in certain portions and is deemed to provided different parts of the back support (figure 1). The base is deemed formed in a size to contact the whole user's back, since Crane disclose that cushion can be used for various seating and packing materials (col. 1, lines 24-29).

The preamble "for a back support provided on one side of articles with which a user's back contacts" is deemed to be a statement with regard to the intended use and is not further limiting in so far as the structure of the product is concerned. In article claims, a claimed intended use must result in a structural difference between the claimed invention and the prior art in order to patentably distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art. MPEP § 2111.02.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

6. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

7. Claims 6-10 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Crane et al. (U.S. Patent No. 3,391,413) as applied above.

Crane fails to disclose elements different rib shapes/configurations.

It would have been an obvious matter of design choice to change the shape of element, since a modification would have involved a mere change in shape of the element. A change in size or shape is generally recognized as being within the level of ordinary skill in the art, absent unexpected results. MPEP 2144.04 (I) and (IV).
